International project "Future of Public Administration" (FoPA)

The project plans a number of conferences and practical seminars, at which the project participants create a platform for exchanging opinions with an interested expert audience from Slovakia and Ukraine (students, teachers, experts, public organizations) regarding public integrity, accountability, honesty and achieving greater interest in the transparency of the public sector , open access to information. The result of the project is a new interfaculty educational course on public administration.

SMART-PL 2022- 2025

SMART-PL is a 3-year project, focused on introducing a model of personalized learning, based on the virtual learning environment of Intellectual Tutoring "Learning with No Limits". Intellectual tutoring is a set of learning tools: SMART online platform for virtual personalized learning and formative student assessment; co-working center with equipment for organizing hybrid learning, which increases the educational process's efficiency and gives both teachers and students more opportunities. "Learning with No Limits" means that all students are welcomed - regardless of age, personality, socioeconomic status, or educational needs, regardless of the opportunity to be present in the audience or not.

Gender Studies and War Challenges in Resilience of Universities in Ukraine: Networking for Excellence in Teaching and Institutional Development

What is it about?

- teaching and learning about gender issues in the conditions of war and (post)war Ukrainian society;
- expansion of topics of Ukrainian society;
- support for the implementation of the strategy of gender equality in partner universities.

Risk and crises management education for a safer Ukraine

Life in war conditions and during the after-war phase necessitates specialized knowledge and practical skills in societal risk and crisis management. The School of Sociology can provide both theoretical and practical layers of knowledge. This will help to improve basin survival conditions for ordinary people, and among them university students, teachers and their families, during the hot war phase and after its end. V.N. Karazin Kharkiv University participation in this project forms the basis for long-term perspectives to create and maintain sustainable knowledge in risk and crisis management.
